A Visit from St. Nicholas.

BY CLEMENT C. MOGRE. Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse; The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there; The children were nestled all snug in their beds, While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads; And mamma in her kerchief and I in my cap, Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap-When out on the lawn there rose such a clatter, I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter, Tore open the shutters and threw up the sush. The moon, on the breast of the new-fallen snow, Gave a lastre of mid-day to objects below; When, what to my wondering eyes should appear,

But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny rein-deer, With a little old driver, so lively and quick, I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick. More rapid than engles his coursers they came, And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name; " Now, Dasher ! now Dancer ! now, Prancer and Vixen ! On ! Comet, on ! Cupid, on ! Dunder and Blitzen-To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall ! Now, dash away, dash away, dash away all !" As dry leaves that before the wild harricane fly, When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky, So, up to the house-top the coursers they flew, With a sleigh full of toys-and St. Nicholas too. And then in a twinkling I heard on the roof, The prancing and pawing of each little hoof. As I drew in my head, and was turning around, Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound, He was dressed all in fur from his head to his foot, And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot; A bundle of toys he had flung on his back, And he looked like a pedler just opening his pack, His eyes how they twinkled! his dimples how merry! His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry; His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow, And the beard on his chin was as white as the snow,

The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth, And the smoke, it encircled his head like a wreath, He had a broad face and a little round belly That shook when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly. He was chubby and plump-a right jolly old elf; And I laughed when I saw him in spite of myself. A wink of his eye, and a twist of his head, Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread. He spoke not a word but went straight to his work, And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk, And laying his fluger aside of his nose, And giving a nod up the chimney he rose,

He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle, And away they all flew like the down of a thistle; But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight, MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL, AND TO ALL A GOOD MIGHT!" -Selected.

VARIETY.

Self-love is not so vite as self neglect. If thou art a master, be sometimes blind; if a servant, sometimes deaf. Many a man strong enough to subdue monsters prefers becoming one.

Young men are often gay deceivers; old ones are sometimes gray deceivers. Whenever you feel inclined to cry, just change your mind and laugh. Bacon says that labor conquers all things, but idleness conquers more people than labor does. Society is a marked ball, where every one hides his real character, and reveals it by hiding. Wars are not unmitigated evils; civilization gets forward sometimes upon a powder cart. The world always receives talent with open arms, but often doesn't know what to do with genius. To the usual catalogue of lost arts, we may mournfully add that of listening to two-hour sermons. Misery is the crucible into which destiny casts a man whenever she desires a scoundrel or a demi-

Fortune loves not a poltroon, and often favors brave men in the wrong more than cowards in the right. As it is a man's destiny to be ruled by woman, he should, for his own sake, render her as fit for the task as possible. A clergyman was once asked whether the members of his church were united. He replied that they were perfectly united-frozen together. "I would have you know that I am a man of quality," said a marquis to a financier. " And I," replied the financier, " am a man of quantity." Truly great men never become vulgarly intimate with each other. They sit apart as the gods, talking from peak to peak ail round Olympus.

He who spends his whole time in sports, and calls it recreation, might appropriately wear garments all made of fringes and eat dinners of nothing but

A little boy had lived for some time with a penurious uncle. The latter was one day walking out with the child at his side, when a friend, accompanied by a greyhound, accosted him. The little fellow, never having seen a dog of so slim and slight a texture, clasped the creature round the neck with the impassioned cry, "O doggie, doggie! and div ye live wi' your uncle, tae, that you are so thin ?"

Can any one of our readers solve the following charade? It has been stated to be by the principal of a Cambridge College, but we know not with what

"A Headless man had a letter to write,

"Iwas read by one who had lost his Sight, The Dumb repeated it word for word, And he was Deaf who listen'd and heard." SECRET OF ENGLAND'S GREATNESS .- We hope the following paragraph is reliable, for it will add another gem to the coronet of womanly and Christian graces which encircles the head of England's noble

It was a noble and beautiful answer of our Queen, says the British Workman, that she gave to an African Prince, who sent an ambassage with costly presents, and asked her in return to tell him the secret of England's greatness and England's glory; and our beloved Queen sent him not the number of her fleet, nor the number of her armies, not the account of her boundless merchandise, not the details of her inexhaustible wealth, she did not like Hezekish, in an evil hour, show the ambassador her diamonds and her rich ornaments, but handing him a beautifully bound copy of the Bible, she said, "tell the Prince that this is the secret of England's greatness."

SMART -Mr. Sala tells us in one of his letters from she States, that a sharp Yankee went into the shop of a dry goods dealer Down East, and thus accosted the proprietor—" Squire, do you trade?" "Con-tiderable," was the reply." "I mean do you dick-er?" "Some; whatye got fer dicker?" "An egg." "Whatye want for an egg?" "Guess I'd like a darnin" needle." The required needle was dickered for the egg, and the Yankee was going away, when he turned and said, "Squire, do you treat?" "Well, I don't mind if I do," replied the good natured tradesman. They repaired to an ad-Jucent tavern, and the usual Bourbon was produced. "Hold on," cried the Yankee; "my chist's weak, and I never could take whisky without an egg in it." The generous shopkeeper handed him the dickered egg, but without asking for his needle back again. The Yankee broke the shell on the edge of the glass when he exclaimed, "Geewillikins! this egg's got two yolks. Guess you must gin me another darnin' needle, squire." -S. F. News Letter.
